No Greater Love

The following words of President Harry Truman are inscribed on the World War II Memorial in Washington, DC:

*Our debt to the heroic men and valiant women in the service of our country can never be repaid.
They have earned our undying gratitude.
America will never forget their sacrifices.*

As we approach Memorial Day Weekend we take the opportunity to reflect upon the meaning of sacrifice. We pause to remember those who have given their lives to win and maintain our freedoms.

But we are also reminded of how Christ calls us to live sacrificially on a daily basis for each other. This does not necessarily mean giving up our lives for someone; it may simply mean giving of our time or of ourselves to listen, to help, and to encourage others.

It is through our sacrificial living that those around us will see and experience firsthand the love of Christ – and there is no greater love!

I look forward to seeing you in worship this Sunday. Have a safe, enjoyable, and meaningful Memorial Day Weekend!

Blessings,

Tom
